

You are so very fortunate to have this fabulous talent at your fingertips. Your ability to imagine creatively can yield solutions, inventions, and life-changing discoveries for humanity. That's kinda cool.

DREAMS AND ESCAPE

One of the reasons you like to daydream and fantasize is because it's a form of escapism. What you want is a perfect world. You certainly want a pleasant one! You don't like poo-poo caca.

Therefore, when you encounter unpleasant situations, sadness, or strife, or any kind of bummer scene — you want to escape. (“Run away! Run away!”) In fact, some of you will physically escape a situation by leaving town or travelling somewhere else, hoping for a geographic cure.

Unfortunately, your Pisces proclivity to seek escape often draws you into drugs and alcohol. Rather than face what is unpleasant, you check out by drinking or getting high. Small wonder your ruler, Neptune, rules all forms of drugs — pharmaceutical and recreational. Hmmm.

Projection

This is a tricky thing to discuss, but you will know right away what I'm talking about. The planet Neptune is your ruler. We know this. Neptune rules illusion, smoke and mirrors, Vaseline on the lens. This is why many Pisces people are chameleon-like.

You guys are shape-shifters!

It's easy for you to project a particular image, and you do so without even trying. For example, if I hand a top hat and a cane to just anyone, they will look like they're standing there holding a cane and wearing a top hat. But if I hand a top hat and a cane to a Pisces — voila! — this person immediately brings to mind Fred Astaire!

You need only a few props to suddenly blossom into a caricature or a particular image. It's as if the image you project to the world is highly malleable. Most Pisces people know this. This is also one of the reasons you are the most fabulous, imaginative dressers.

I used to be a movie critic. The newspaper I worked for was so small I covered both movies and stage plays. For those who go to plays a lot, there's a “look” to a theatre crowd. Sure, there are a lot of posers, but mostly this crowd looks like they are trying to underplay who they really are. Sort of the “I'm so famous I'm wearing sunglasses and downplaying my status” kinda thing. There's a lot of brown, and black, and leather. Don't get me wrong there's also a lot of average, everyday types as well.

One evening, my editor asked me to cover a dance performance. I told him I wasn't qualified to do this, but he sent me off to do it anyway. During intermission, as I surveyed the crowd, I was stunned. This was a very different crowd! (And it
